A consultant is an individual who is a specialist in a specific field and who is engaged by the United Nations under a temporary contract in an advisory or consultative capacity. Consultants shall serve in a personal capacity and not as representatives of a government or of any other authority external to the United Nations. They are neither “staff members” under the Staff Regulations nor “Officials” for the purposes of the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations. The total remuneration payable to a consultant by the United Nations is specified in the contract in terms of gross amounts. Payments of any taxes shall be the sole responsibility of the consultant, who shall not be entitled to reimbursement by the United Nations of any taxes he or she may be required to pay or to any other benefits, payments or subsidies, except as expressly stated in the contract. The United Nations shall not provide any medical or life insurance for the consultant. Consultants may not apply or be appointed to any post in the Secretariat within six months of the end of their service.
